Celebrating 20 Years

Last weekend (15th October 2011), Leamington-based theatre company, Heartbreak Productions, celebrated their 20th anniversary.

Renowned for their unique open-air productions in the summer, the company had a party with just some of the cast members and creative teams who have helped make the company such a prominent force in both local and national touring theatre.

With a policy of casting and employing local people, Maddy Kerr, Heartbreak's Executive Director explained

"It was a fantastic evening with so many familiar faces and wonderful to think that we had helped to encourage just some of the great talent and creativity in the room.

"So many of the people we have worked with have made us extremely proud and continued their careers with the RSC, in TV and film."

Heartbreak Productions further promote the nurturing of young talent by running The Heartbreak Hub - fun and creative drama groups for 5 – 14 year olds on a Saturday morning. They also run film, education, training and community groups that have devised films and theatre pieces in subjects as diverse as road safety to local history.
